Elk Point hosts Midget Provincials

Rocky Sundevils defeat Fort Saskatchewan Red Sox in championship game

Elk Point kept up their reputation as excellent provincial tournament hosts this weekend, as the Cold-Lake/Elk Point Cardinals hosted the Midget Baseball Provincials.

Teams came from Coronation, Taber, St. Albert, Rocky Mountain House and Fort Saskatchewan to take part in three scorching days of competition.

The six teams were introduced by Elk Point Minor Ball president Laverne Wilson as they paraded onto the field Friday evening to take their places on the base lines for the opening ceremonies.

Mayor Parrish Tung urged the teens to "seize the moment. This competition is very special." He thanked parents and coaches from all the teams for their support and guidance, and the numerous volunteers, without whom, "Elk Point couldn't host provincials nearly every year."

Tournament director George Laskey of Baseball Alberta congratulated the teams on reaching the provincial finals.

"Zone Seven welcomes you. This is going to be one heck of a tournament."

Andrea Bader, Lindsey and Madison MacDonald led the singing of O Canada.

Doug Bassett made a special presentation to Wilson, recognizing his 20 years of dedication and volunteerism to minor ball in Elk Point, along with a gift certificate for Wilson's wife Doris, who was busy in the concession during the ceremonies.

"Twenty years go by pretty fast," Wilson said as he accepted the plaque.

The ceremonial first pitch was dedicated to a long-ago minor ball player who passed away July 9. Tyler Loughran, grandson of the late Johnny Oryschuk, threw the pitch to Oryschuk's Junior Ball Club teammate from the early 1960s, Marshall Myshaniuk.

'Huge event' in retrospect Centennial, Canada Day an outstanding success

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

The planners of Elk Point's joint Centennial / Canada Day celebrations sat down July 10 to evaluate what all agreed was, "a huge event." They worked their way through the events of both days, after chairperson Bernice Capjack thanked everyone for all their efforts, and Mayor Parrish Tung presented everyone with a certificate of thanks.

The treasurer's report showed that almost $13,000 in donations had been received, with expenses expected to leave only a small balance when the bills are paid. The Town of Elk Point had set aside $10,000 to cover major expenses, such as signage and banners, and to pay up-front costs which would be reimbursed. To date, the town has recouped about $3,5000, with more coming in as t-shirts are sold during the summer. The total cost of the two days was $29,240, with net cost to the town about $6,500.

A series of open-house-style reunions kicked off the June 30 Centennial. Capjack reported good attendance at the Elk Point Elementary open house, while F. G. Miller principal Laverne Wilson said although doors remained open for an extra hour, some complained about the short time span allocated at that venue. "Not that many" attended the Hospital Auxiliary open house, Capjack said, and less than expected attended the Pioneer Circle and Royal Canadian Legion open house at the Seniors' Recreation Centre, where Mayor Tung handed out about 60 commemorative certificates to seniors.

Mayor Parrish Tung and Centennial/Canada Day chair Bernice Capjack surprised Deanna Easthope with roses.

Centennial/Canada Day committee reviews 'huge event'

Windsor Salt's gathering at the Elks Hall was well-attended.

Only two teams showed up for the bed races, but they competed with style and energy. This event may be repeated next year, possibly with a second category for modified beds.

The Ukrainian meal was excellent, with about 450 served and "a lot of volunteers," Lesia Porcina said.

The Great Fur Factor Challenge brought record attendance to Fort George and Buckingham House, with the bus transportation felt to be an asset, although many families took their own vehicles to the site.

"Very positive comments" were received about the old-time crafts display, art display and historical displays, Ray Hellquist's school display attracting much attention. Cecilia DeSilva said it had been a challenge to display the work of 11 artists in an area where the walls were lined with poster contest entries, in a way that did not detract from either type of artwork.

The outdoor stage show was a big hit, and the Elk Point Community Choir had done a great job with their narration and songs about Elk Point's history.

Elk Point 4-H's horse-shoe games, nail pounding and log sawing competitions were popular and "everyone had a blast."

Although setup was very labour-intensive, the homecoming supper/banquet was deemed a success, with a sellout crowd. The arena's challenging acoustics made it difficult for some to hear the speeches, but as Thomas Kondla reminded everyone, "It's not the Winspear." The accompanying silent auction, which brought in $4389.50, was handled very efficiently by Capjack and Heather Paquette. Easthope will send out receipts to the numerous donors.

The family dance was not well attended, and some felt the music was too loud as the crowd included people who wished to visit. The FGM Travel Club sold water and pop at the event.

The fireworks display was "extremely good," although some debris fell on lawns in the area.

The 'people movers' were a major asset, and Ruth Vogel's guided tours were a major hit, enjoyed by the tractor drivers as well.

Ralph Hallwach's horses and surrey were a "gorgeous" addition.

Parking was available, but not used, as was the ambulance/first aid service, although it was good to have had them on hand in case they were needed.

The Information Centre, courtesy of RONA, was another good addition, with good volunteers. It was suggested that name tags should have been available at other venues as well.

Evaluation of Canada Day events showed 25 volunteers serving 940 hungry people at the chamber of commerce pancake breakfast, a record number on both counts, with Footprints and Servus Credit Union staffs both much appreciated for their efforts. Good music by the Country Playboys was enjoyed by all at the well-organized event.

The interdenominational church service was "tremendous" and "very interesting," and committee members were impressed by the large crowd.

The parade was the longest ever, and the volunteer judges would have appreciated more time to make their deliberations. It was suggested that the town street sweeper should have followed the horses.

There were lineups at the Figure Skating Club's concession in the arena and at the Christian Community Church's pie booth, where 1,200 slices of pie were sold. The OORP's Canada Day cake was "great in two official languages."

The outdoor stage show featured a good variety of entertainment, and included Homer and Corbin Poiras who arrived at the end of the program for a most enjoyable segment.

The children's games and during the stage show entertained 150 youngsters, and is "a must for next year." Numerous volunteers assisted organizer Ruth Vogel, who said she is not available on Canada Day next year, but is willing to assist with the preliminary arrangements. Fewer children came to the Elks Hall, where there were four face painters, a plinko game and refreshments. Better attendance was recorded upstairs for the beef-on-a-bun supper and adult refreshments.

The bleacher seating and standby ambulance/first aid were good additions to the Strength Challenge, which was a huge success.

Bleachers were also a big plus at the Farm Survival Challenge, where over 600 people gathered to wind up the day as they watched the exciting competition.

Elk Point got a good report card from the Girl Guides, who said there was "not much garbage. People were very clean."

Other evaluation included advertising before the event, which "could have been better, but 'how?' was the question," according to Easthope. Radio, television, and newspaper advertising, flyers and posters were good, and the Elk Point Review was praised for their special edition. A few of these are still available at the Review office and the Tourist Information Centre.

The Centennial flags ran into printing problems. Two imperfect flags arrived before the event and the redone order after July 1. They will fly at various locations for the rest of the year. Banners were installed in time and looked great.

T-shirts are still for sale at the town office, and will also be sold at Information Night in September. The leftover commemorative pencils will be distributed to students at both schools.

Other comments included the need for portable toilets during the stage show to save long walks to the arena facilities, and cold water could have been provided for visitors at the Centennial info booth. Volunteers were slow to come forward, but "in the end, we had enough," Easthope said.

In summary, "the two days were awesome and we all did a great job," Capjack said. "This has been a wonderful committee."

A very surprised Deanna Easthope was presented with roses and a $200 honorarium for efforts far above and beyond the call of duty.

Saskatoon Festival offers a taste of summer at FGBH

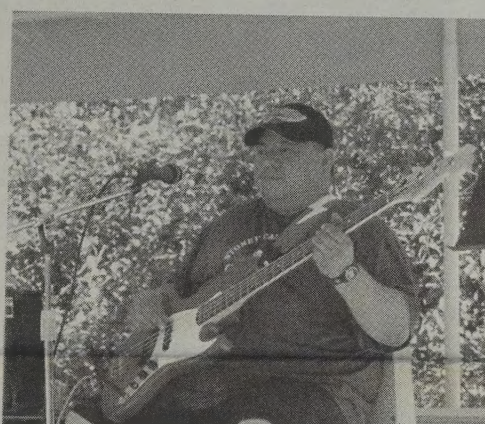

Crafters Lesia Sherwin and Verona Lea Flanders found a shady spot for Sherwin's 'Coyote Creations' and Flanders' array of purses and shopping bags, right next to an array of finely detailed woodwork from Jerry and Marlene's Crafts of Ashmont. Paintings, weaving, linens, pottery, baking and produce were also on sale in the booths lined up along Fort George and Buckingham House Interpretive Centre

Friends of the Forts volunteer Paul Chamberland had one of the day's coolest jobs. He served up countless slices of Saskatoon pie heaped with ice cream to Saskatoon Festival visitors on Sunday, July 22.

Fiddler Homer Poitras and friends entertained throughout the early afternoon as visitors shopped, ate bison burgers and Saskatoon pie, and enjoyed tours of the interpretive centre and hikes out to the original fort sites. An excellent crowd of more than 120 people visited Fort George and Buckingham House on Sunday for the annual event, which celebrates the tasty Saskatoon berries which grow wild in the area. The next major event coming up at the Provincial Historic Site is the Forts des Prairies Jamboree on Sunday, August 26.

EDITORIAL

Wrong numbers!

One of our readers pointed out a couple of most puzzling errors in the new phone books that everyone received last week.

"When did they move Fort George and Buckingham House?" she inquired. "It says in the new phone book that they're in the middle of St. Paul Golf Course."

Sure enough, when we opened the book to the map section, that is exactly what it showed. Every bit as puzzling was a pair of maps that said they were of Bonnyville, but had Cold Lake in the top right corner of each. When did they have time to make those moves?

Just a few days before, we had been in both Cold Lake and Bonnyville, and Cold Lake was at the top right corner of the town of that name, and Bonnyville was still along Jessie Lake, as usual. It was still a relief to arrive at our local historic site on Sunday and see that Fort George and Buckingham House were, in fact, where they were supposed to be.

The staff at the Forts said they had had a number of calls in the past few days asking for directions to the historic site from Edmonton. They may get way more calls, and the St. Paul tourist information people may get some puzzling requests, if people consult the new phone book's maps for directions.

Talk about having a wrong number!

WAY BACK WHEN...

Parent-built playground, home-town health care

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF JULY 24 IN...

1987

With $4,000 in funding committed by the Town of Elk Point, a group of neighbourhood parents were hard at work planning a playground for the north subdivision which would include a tire park, a preschool area and a ramp, bridge and slide combination. Elk Point Chamber of Commerce laid plans to present a brief to Minister of Parks and Recreation Norm Weiss asking for the reinstatement of overnight camping facilities at Whitney Lake.

1992

The Town of Elk Point rezoned a parcel of land from high density residential to institutional as a potential site for a new Roman Catholic church. F. G. Miller's Class of '72 held their 20-year reunion, with 30 members of the class enjoying the weekend along with their families and former teachers.

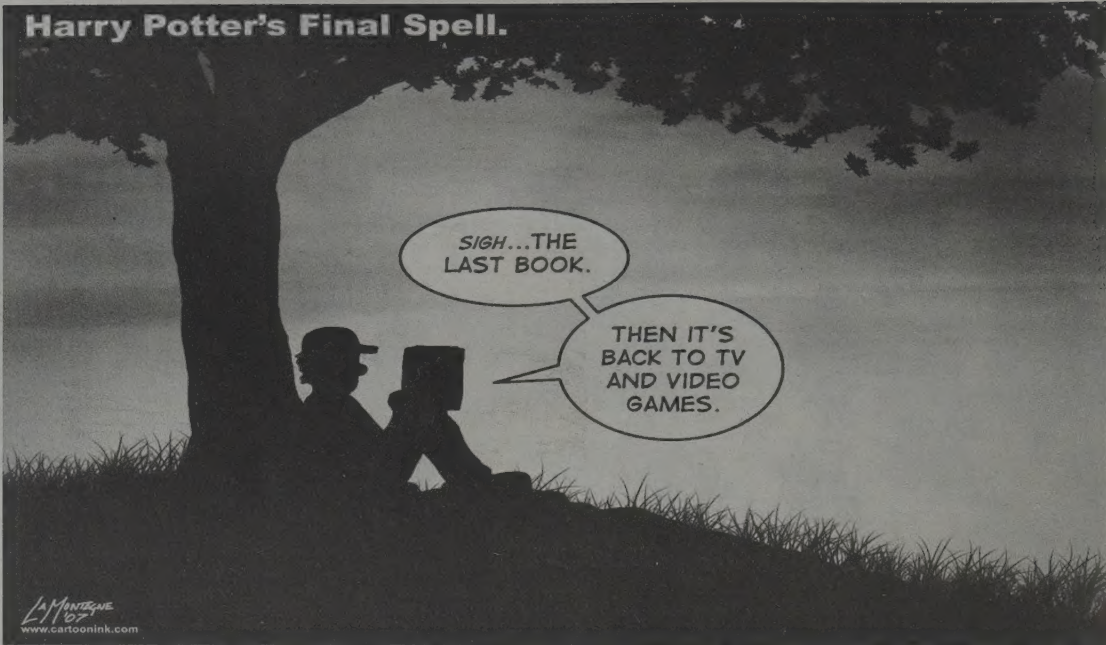

1997

Erica Nielsen collected her second Junior Barrel Racing championship in two weekends and Matthew Veer won the Calf Roping under sunny skies at Whitney Lake Rodeo. Elk Point Public Library was accepting donations of plants for a garden honouring 50 years of library service in Elk Point.

2002

It was business as usual at Elk Point Health Care Centre, despite another round of rumours about its possible closure, and nurse manager Val Sebree said, "some people say they used to go to Edmonton for health care, but they say the health care is better at home." Producers were selling cattle in response to the drought gripping the region, with the province's drought disaster package not adequate to assist the remaining herds.

The Elk Point Review publishes a variety of opinions as a contribution to debate on matters of public concern. Unsigned editorials express the view of this newspaper's editorial board which includes the Publisher and the Editor. Signed pieces express the view of the individual writer.

The 'cradle' of the country

When one thinks about the cradle, one thinks of a new baby that is place therein and is being rocked to sleep by a mother. However, the word 'cradle' can be used to refer to something 'in the beginning.' For example, Jamestown, Virginia is referred to as 'the cradle of America' and they are celebrating 400 years this year. As in any historical information, there is always research involved to prove their 'factual statement.' Gary Carl Grass, the author of the book, "The First English Settlement in America," said that, "The United States of America has many forefathers and mothers, but the English were there from the genesis. The English made their first attempts to plant roots in what is today the United States in 1585-86, 1586 and 1587. They settled on an island named Roanoke, in a place they called 'Virginia.' This isle, which is about 12 miles long and from two to three miles wide, is located in the northeastern corner of present-day North Carolina ... The First Colony of 107 settlers arrived in the area of Roanoke Island in June 1585. They began to build a fort and an adjacent small village that August..."

deanna EASTHOPE
from the FCSS desk

Even though it was the first settlement, Roanoke is not known as 'the Cradle of America.' In the book, "Cradle of America," by Peter Wallenstein, he said, "As the site of the first permanent English settlement in North America, the birthplace of a presidential dynasty and the gateway to western growth in the nation's early years, Virginia can rightfully be called, 'the Cradle of America.'" Thus, Jamestown, Virginia is celebrating 400 years of settlement, 1607-2007.

What about our country, Canada? What location of settlement can be called 'the Cradle of Canada'? In doing some research, I learned that Quebec City has some interesting history. Champlain established a colony in the Lower Town in 1608. Montreal, on the other hand, is Canada's oldest city. It was settled by the French in 1608 as a trading post. It was the capital of New France from 1663 to 1763, when it was lost to the British. It was the capital of Lower Canada from 1791 to 1841 and of Canada East from 1841 to 1867. It became the provincial capital in 1867.

But is there another location that might be an older settlement in Canada? Halifax, Nova Scotia is the capital of Nova Scotia and a main harbour. Today, Halifax is known as the 'Gateway to Canada.' Although France established the first permanent European settlement in Nova Scotia in 1604, Great Britain coveted the area and acquired it under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713. They renamed it Nova Scotia, Latin for New Scotland.

What about Newfoundland? The early 1600s saw the setting up of joint stock companies in England and other European countries to exploit trading zones in distant lands. Among them were the Londonderry, Virginia and Bermuda companies - and the Newfoundland Company, established by Bristol and London merchants in 1610. Their aim was very practical. The main value of settlement at Newfoundland, as they saw it, was "to secure and make safe the trade of fishing." The company's royal charter granted it the whole island of Newfoundland, but it was understood that activity would be focused on the Avalon Peninsula. Thirty-nine colonists set out from Bristol in 1610 under John Guy, an experienced Bristol merchant. They were to fortify the settlement at Cupids (then known as Cuper's Cove) in Conception Bay, experiment with farming, cut spars and planks, make salt, potash and glass, collect samples of ore, and significantly, to fish and trade in cured fish and train oil. The small colony had problems and didn't really survive.

So, after all this research, do we know where the Cradle of Canada is? Probably not. But, it does look like we do have a 'Cradle of Interest' in establishing our great country of Canada, and, it is also about 400-plus years ago.

ELK POINT CENTENNIAL QUESTION OF THE WEEK Remember water rationing?

An abundant supply of good quality water is one of the most important amenities a town can have, but for many years, this seemed an impossible dream for Elk Point residents.

Early residents had no trouble obtaining water from shallow wells in the community, but obtaining water in large quantities was a problem.

For a few years, water was brought in from deep wells dug west of town, but it was an unstable supply, not allowing residents to water their gardens in hot, dry weather, and full of rust which stained laundry and bathroom fixtures. A large wooden water tower, which was inclined to leak, was part of the distribution system.

Imagine the joy when the town constructed a water reservoir, said to be capable of holding a three-year supply of water, in 1967-68. A water treatment plant was built, and a large stage tank placed underground to the north of town to hold the rust-free, chlorinated water.

Sundevils take long road to provincial gold

By DOUG BASSETT
Review Sports

Rocky Mountain House took the longest road possible to win the provincial gold. A three-way tie after the round robins were finished on Saturday night forced Rocky to play an extra tiebreaker game Sunday morning at 8 a.m. against the hosting Cold Lake/Elk Point Cardinals. Winning that one, they went on to win the semifinal over St. Albert, putting them in the final against Fort Saskatchewan, the final game ending just before 10 p.m. on Sunday night, after 14 hours in the 30-degree heat.

The Fort went down swinging in the final, picking up three runs in the seventh inning in a valiant attempt to reduce their 12-3 deficit.

The Cards actually defeated Rocky the day before 10 to 3, then lost to Coronation in their second game, making a three-way tie in the pool. The Cards went on to win the consolation game over Taber 5 to 4. In the other semi final the silver medal winners, Fort Saskatchewan came out on top of Coronation.

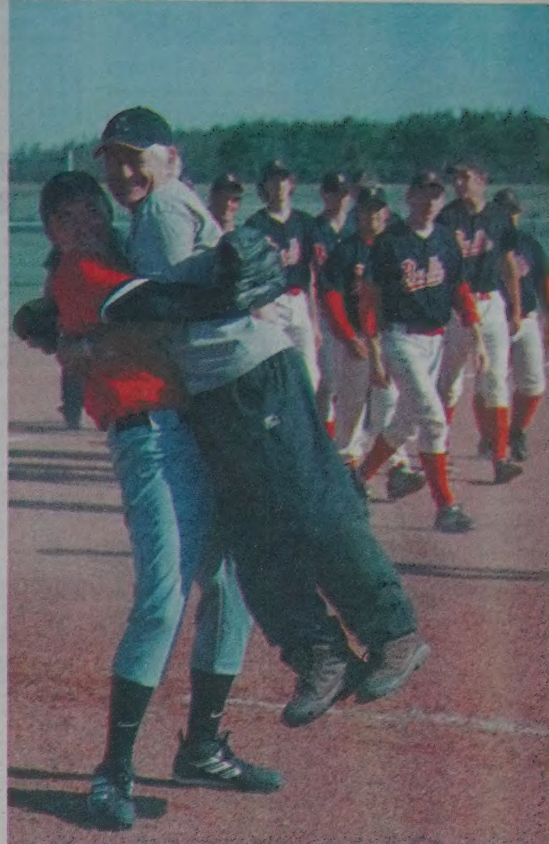

A great weekend for ball, and I'd like to thank all that helped to make number eight another big success, but we will save that for next week.

Water

Water was pumped into the reservoir from Atimoswe Creek, and in years of ample runoff, Elk Point was able to water their gardens with no fear of putting the water supply in jeopardy.

Fifteen or so years later, water problems resurfaced, with beavers damming the creek and reduced water levels forcing the town to pump water out of Hook Lake into the creek. Despite treatment, the water retained a faint slough-water smell and sometimes had a slight yellow tinge. Dry summers saw lawns parched as water use was curtailed. It wasn't until 1989 that the town received approval to pump water from the North Saskatchewan River. The water treatment plant was upgraded, and since then, Elk Point has enjoyed an ample supply of good quality water to serve the needs of its residents.
